

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Techniques are provided for a multifunction peripheral for data collection and distribution comprising a multifunction peripheral configured to perform the steps of requesting device-related information from a network device over a network; receiving device-related information from the network device over the network; generating a device-related report based on said device-related information; and sending said device-related report to a recipient device.